The Art of "Companionship" the Mourner: Caring Versus Curing

This is a professional workshop for nurses, hospice workers, social workers, counselors, clergy, chaplains, lay ministers and anyone caring for the bereaved. In this full-day presentation, the critical distinction between Caring and Curing will be outlined. Dr. Wolfelt will contrast his "companionship" model of grief care with a traditional "medical" model of curing or resolving grief. Learn to recognize that grief and mourning are normal and necessary experiences and are fundamental journeys of the heart and soul. We will explore:

- Does our culture value "Cure" over "Care"?
- "Companionship" versus "Treating" the Mourner
- The six universal needs of mourning
- "Shadow of the Ghosts" of Grief
- Advocating for the Slow Grief Movement
